APOLOGETIX: Recovery $12.99 UPC 651968001723
 Released in October 2009, "Recovery" includes 12 brand new biblical parodies of classic rock hits from the late 1970's, including Kansas ("Carry On Wayward Son"), Queen ("We Will Rock You" and "We are the Champions"), Styx ("Come Sail Away"), REO Speedwagon ("Time for Me to Fly"), KISS ("Detroit Rock City"), Journey ("Lovin' Touchin' Squeezin'"), Cheap Trick ("Surrender"), ELO ("Don't Bring Me Down"), Toto ("Hold the Line"), Bad Company ("Rock 'N' Roll Fantasy"), and more.

"When naming this project, we decided to spoof ELO's double-platinum album "Discovery" as "Recovery". We all loved our parody of their song "Don't Bring Me Down" and we closed our album with it as ELO did on "Discovery". We also spoofed ELO's cover, but ours features ApologetiX bassist Keith Haynie rather than Aladdin. He's holding an old Simon game in place of the famous ELO glowing sic. The Simon game came out in 1978, and the songs we spoofed are all from 1976-79, so it seemed very appropriate. Of course, we changed the name from Simon to Peter, since that's what Jesus did, too." -J. Jackson, ApologetiX

 Present tense.
 If you thought
 they were tense,
 wait till you see
 the future!
